

- Countries under the International Trade Union Confederation (ITUC-Africa)*
- Government opposing the BDS movement
- EU countries under the policy of guidelines regarding economic cooperation with Israel. The guidelines state that any Israeli party wishing to cooperate with the European Union must present evidence that it has no links to areas outside pre-1967 Israel (i.e. West Bank, East Jerusalem, and the Golan Heights).
- The Palestinian Authority opposes full boycott and supports boycotting Israeli settlements.
- Arab League, 1945*
- Trade union federation supports BDS.

* In addition to being a part of the ITUC-Africa, South Africa's national trade federation supports the BSD campaign as does the ruling African National Congress (ANC) party in South Africa.

 However there is evident support for the BDS movement amongst the American public. For instance, the American Studies Association generated backlash when it voted to boycott Israel's higher educational institutions denouncing Israeli policies against Palestinians in 2013. In 2014, the Presbyterian Church, one of the most eminent religious assemblies in the US voted to divest from three companies (Caterpillar, Hew-Packard, and Motorola Solutions), which provide Israel with supplies utilized in Occupied Palestinian Territory.

 Many variations exist within the EU countries and their stances regarding the BDS movement. The governments of the UK, Netherlands, Romania, Finland, Sweden, Ireland and Norway oppose full boycott and only encourage boycott of illegal Israeli settlements. Trade union federations in the UK, Norway, Scotland, Sweden, Finland, Ireland, and Belgium support BDS. France and Germany's governments oppose the boycott.

* Several members signed agreements to end support for boycotting Israel.
